EASY READER REORGANIZATION

- To make shelving more reader-friendly, staff reorganized and relabeled the Easy Reader section of the library.
- The "Easy Reader" section includes beginning chapter books for newly independent readers ready to move beyond picture books. Small children's chapter books that can be easily overlooked on the shelves are also now shelved in this section.
- Previously, all levels of Easy Readers were shelved together. Now, each level is on a separate shelf with new signage.
- This new system appears to be working: 34% of Easy Reader circulations from January through August 2022 were last month, more than any other month this year.

ASSOCIATION FOR RURAL & SMALL LIBRARIES ANNUAL CONFERENCE

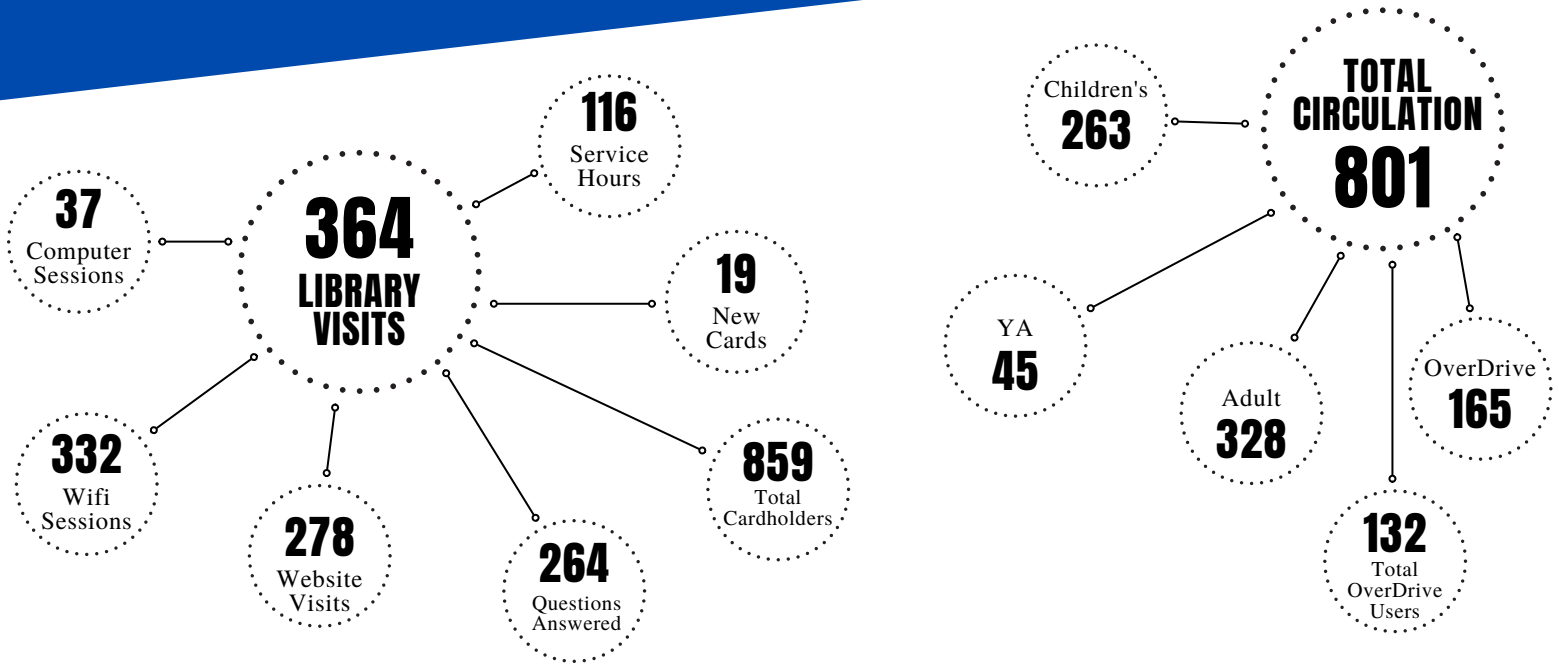

- Two members of the NDLD staff traveled to Chattanooga, Tennessee, for a week of learning and networking with librarians from around the nation.
- Staff attended over 30 events and sessions, both in-person and on demand, and made lasting connections with more than 20 small libraries across the U.S. Several new partnerships for programming and resources are now in the works.
- Our staff brought back programming ideas and renewed energy for projects, including: policies, collection development, local history, social media, and planning for the library's future.
- A direct result of this conference, staff have begun adding videos to the District's social media pages. "Process A Book With Us" and "Day In The Life" of a library worker are available on both Instagram and Facebook.

CLASS VISITS

- The North Douglas Elementary School's second grade is now regularly visiting the library. Visits teach library etiquette, introduce library resources, and provide space for students to research reading interests.
- Each visit includes staff book spotlights, time for selecting new books, a snack, and a craft or activity that encourages creativity.
- During the first class visit, students and staff played "Roll A Monster". Each student took a turn rolling a giant die, which instructed the group what to create for their monster. For instance, if the first student rolled a 3 every student would draw 3 square heads on their monster.

PICTURE BOOK CATEGORIES

- Picture books in the library have a new look! Each title is now clearly visible on the shelf with a brightly colored category sticker. Titles are organized together into 18 broad categories. As of the end of November, about half the picture book collection has been labeled with the rest of the collection expected to be finished soon.
- Categories were created based on patron request & current collection subjects. Custom labels were designed in Canva. Each title is also marked in the library's catalog to help patrons quickly find books of interest.
- Patrons, especially children, are now able to more easily find the picture book subjects they enjoy. Staff have already noticed an increase in circulation of categorized titles.
- This project began in March 2022 after staff returned from the Public Library Association conference with ideas. By October, staff had created custom sections & began switching titles to the new system.

JUVENILE NONFICTION CATEGORIES

- Juvenile Nonfiction is getting a new look as part of our library-wide reorganization project to improve collection accessibility & usability for patrons & increase overall circulation.
- Titles are currently being rearranged into new, clearly visible categories. Each title has a brightly colored category sticker with easy-to-read information. As of the end of February, about 1/3 of this collection has been updated to the new system.
- Categories are based on BISAC (bookstore) subject headings, patron request, & the current collection. As titles are added to categories, gaps are identified & new books added to the order list.
- Custom labels were designed in Canva; each category includes unique subcategory designs. Each title's category & subcategory is marked in the library's catalog to help patron's quickly find books of interest.
- Patron feedback is already extremely positive, including comments on ease & intuitiveness for finding books of interest & better visibility of books on the shelves.

OLA ANNUAL CONFERENCE

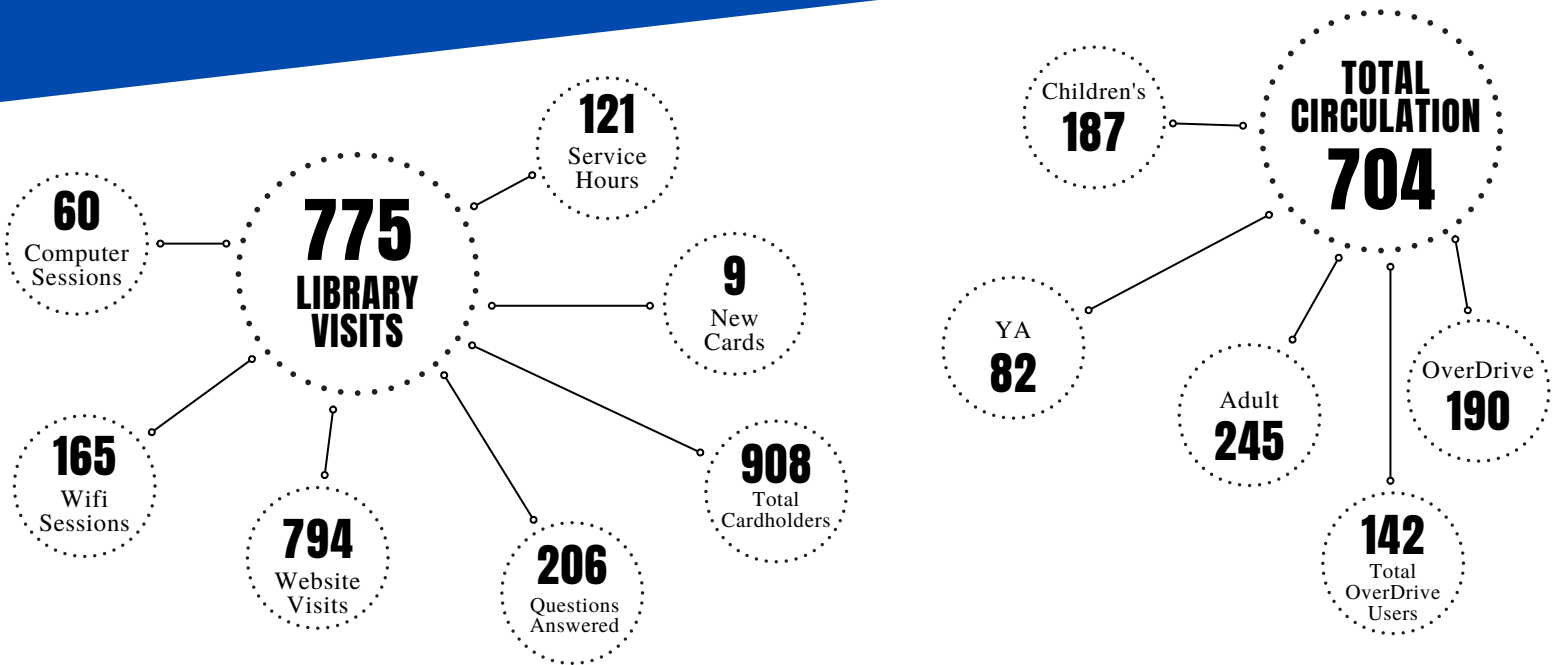

- All library staff and two board members attended the annual Oregon Library Association conference from April 19 through 22. This year the conference was at the Riverhouse on the Deschutes in Bend with the theme of "Rekindle, Rejuvenate, & Reimagine".
- Over the preconference and three conference days, NDLD attendees went to sessions on rethinking Dewey, book mending, bookmobiles, library collections, job & small business services, strategic planning, teen advisory groups, Oregon youth authors, statistics, teen internships, and so much more. Look forward to new programs and projects in the coming months!
- During the conference, NDLD attendees were able to network with other Oregon libraries and build relationships with library-related vendors. Two vendors of note are Blackstone Publishing, which donated 3 new audiobooks to the library's collection, and Virco, which gifted 4 chairs and a media table to the teen space. See the new additions during your next library visit!

SUMMER READING 2023

- The Mildred Whipple Library's 2023 Summer Reading program runs Tuesday, June 13, through Wednesday, August 9. The theme this year is "Find Your Voice" & the library has a full summer of fun things planned!
- Summer Reading is a FREE program for all ages. There are two parts to the program: 1) An on-your-own reading portion, & 2) A weekly in-person activity at the library. Some of our nine activities this year include mini gardens, painting, tie dye, bullet journals, & a puppet theater during our 6th annual Family Night Dinner.
- Participants can complete reading adventures & attend the in-person activities to earn prize tickets. The library has prizes to giveaway each week (including themed swag, pool passes, & ice cream certificates), & all prize tickets earned are entered into the grand prize drawings for each age group: $100 to Putter's (children), $100 to Portal Adventures Escape Room (teens), or 2 nights at The Eugene Dome (adults). SERIES SPINE LABELS

- In an ongoing effort to improve our patron browsing experience, staff are updating series identification for adult fiction books. Previously series were marked by a black sticker on the spine, with the series number written in silver or gold.
- Now, series have a unique color to help differentiate between individual series by the same author (see top right photo). This will be especially helpful for popular authors with multiple series, such as James Patterson, Nora Roberts, and John Sandford. Stickers are added to books within a series with no clearly visible numeration.
- Series information is also available in the library catalog and viewable both from the results page (see bottom right photo) and within the expanded book record.
